Plane breaks through ice on Lake of Bays

Chad Ingram

Staff reporter

Former Algonquin Highlands councillor Don Shortreed is OK if a bit shaken up after his plane broke through the ice on Lake of Bays Monday, Shortreed, 80, lives on Trading Bay in Dorset and had just landed after coming in from a flight in the early afternoon.

"He hadn't had [his plane] out all winter and he just wanted to have one fly," his wife Marlene told the Times. "He was taxiing in. He's done the same procedure many times."

Marlene noted that Shortreed is always careful, checking the ice, but with the sun having been out in days prior, guessed the thaw was further along than he expected.

'The ice just gave away," she said.

Before he'd headed out, Shortreed had called son George to come over to help him put the plane back in its hangar.

George spotted the plane as he drove along the

"As he was going by, he saw the tail of the airplane sticking out of the water," Marlene said.

George hopped on his dad's snowmobile, heading out onto the frozen lake where he found Shortreed, hanging onto one of the plane's struts.

"He was in the water about 15 minutes," Marlene said, adding that her husband had frostbite on his hands. "It was a very close call."

George had gone armed with a rope and hook and after pulling his father from the lake, headed back to the house.

Marlene had seen her son take off on the snowmobile.

Blood donation clinic not meeting targets

Chad Ingram

Staff reporter

A longtime blood donor is urging more residents to attend clinics in Minden.

The donation clinics held by Canadian Blood Services in the village are failing to meet their targets.

The hours have been severely reduced, so it's really important people show up," says Jan Briggs-McGowan.

Briggs-McGowan is a longtime donor and has given blood 126 times. The Norland resident attends all the Minden clinics, held each 56 or so days.

"There's so many things they need blood for," she says.

Hours for the Minden clinic were reduced last year. While the clinics had run from 2:30 to 6:30 p.m. for a number of years, they now run from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m.

"The clinic was not meeting the goal of 50 units," blood services spokesman Marc Plante wrote in an email to the Times.

A unit contains 450 ml of blood. The four-hour clinics began in 2009, with a goal of 55 units per clinic. The average collection was 44 units.

For 2010, the goal was dropped to 50 units and the average collection remained at 44 units. It dipped to 42 in 2011, rebounding back to 44 in 2012.

Timelines have yet to be firmed up and since playground upgrades had been part of an Ontario Trillium Foundation grant Coleman had applied for, he was busy reconfiguring things to account for the new equipment.

There is a possible date, end of June, beginning of July," Coleman said.

Algonquin Highlands has also been successful with a Great Lakes Guardian Community Fund grant, part of which will be used for a shoreline naturalization project set to move ahead this summer.

That project will include the planting of mature trees and native shrubbery and may become part of the show as well. "We're trying to align everything," Coleman said. "We're

Food hub gets Trillium grant

Chad Ingram

Staff reporter

A Trillium grant will mean that both phases of the Haliburton County Food Centre will be completed within a year.

It was announced last week that the food centre - a joint effort between the Minden Food Bank and members of the Minden Masonic Hall - will receive a $150,000 Trillium grant.

The provincially funded Ontario Trillium Foundation awards about 1,500 grants a year to non-profit and charitable organizations for community projects.

"Now we can really get going," says project manager Steve

With a zero-interest loan for another $150,000 the board received from the Haliburton County Development Corporation last year, it has enough money for the construction of the 5,000-square-foot project.

Built as an addition to the Mason's Acadia Lodge on Newcastle Street in Minden, it will be the new home of the Minden Food Bank as well as a community kitchen. The facility will offer cooking and nutrition education as well as local food programming and will have a mandate to support community efforts to deal with hunger and poverty in the county

The joint project is of mutual benefit to the Masons and the food bank.

"This year some Masonic lodges across Ontario are going dark," says Berry, treasurer at the Acadia Lodge. "This is due to construction problems encountered in trying to meet the new compliance guidelines issued by the Grand Lodge. These regulations are needed to bring each Masonic lodge into policy with the Ontario Building Code."

The first part of the project has been underway for a number of months, with the lodge moved from its foundation so a new foundation could be poured.

The Masons get a new foundation for their aging hall and the food bank gets a new, large storage space.

It will store food not just for the Minden Food Bank, but, complete with a loading dock, will also act as a delivery hub for the food banks throughout the county.

"It came together perfectly," Berry says. The hall will be moved back onto the foundation when the weather permits.

Volunteers will use the community kitchen to prepare frozen meals.

"We'll be handing those out to clients," says Barbara Walford Davis, chairwoman of the food bank and the joint project's management board.

"The overflow of food comes upstairs and is turned into meals," Berry says.

Both floors will be totally accessible.

Builders are lined up for the project and conditions of the grant stipulate that the work must be done in a year.

Along with a loan, HCDC also awarded a $20,000 grant for a walk-in freezer and a second freezer has been donated to the project.

The board will be undertaking fundraising for the rest of the kitchen equipment. Down the road the building will require an elevator to connect the two floors.

Minden Hills has also kicked in $10,000, with councillors voting in favour of a onetime grant in January and the board has been working with Minden Hills's planning and building departments.

"There's been excellent co-operation from the township," Berry says.

There will be two fundraisers for the project early next month.

A barbecue will take place at Pine Reflections in Carnarvon on May 3 and on May 4, Rhubarb restaurant will host a fundraising brunch from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The giving kind

Chad Ingram

HEY WANT our blood. We all knew this day would come.

Minden Hills has been taken over by vampires.

Actually, it's not fang-wielding creatures of the night who are after your hemoglobin, but rather, and much less frighteningly, the folks at Canadian Blood Services.

The agency has been hosting donation clinics in Minden since 2009. They take place every other month on a Monday.

The hours of the clinics have been reduced since they were not meeting collection goals and while shortened hours mean the target number has been dropped, the clinics are still falling short.

There seems to be a small but committed group of donors, as attendance has remained fairly steady throughout the years.

However, the number of new donors declines from year to year. There were 18 new donors in 2010 versus just six last year.

One longtime donor is concerned that if more of us don't start giving, the Minden clinic may eventually be closed.

Donating blood is something that almost all of us can do, but which most of us don't.

Only 3.5 per cent of people eligible to donate do so

It takes only a few minutes. Yes, there's the little prick, but they give you cookies at the end.

With the clinics running until 5:30 p.m., there's time for most of us to scoot over to the community centre at the end of a workday.

Perhaps you have a flexible work schedule that would allow you to go earlier in the day.

Perhaps, if you have a benevolent employer, they would even let you sneak away during work hours, since you would be doing something for the greater good of humanity

Maybe even them one day.

Try that. Donations are used for all kinds of pur-

The next Minden clinic will be held Monday, May 12.

Letter a touching tribute to Dr. Fiddler

To the Editor,

Thank you for running the tribute to Dr. Fiddler, it was so well written! He was an amazing Dr. When we had to visit the ER (which everybody does) we always said "Oh I hope it is Dr. Fiddler, and hope it's the Lindsay one." Both always knew their stuff but David always seemed just a little more caring. He also worked with my aunt in Lindsay. She is still an emerg nurse there. So we always made a connection and took just a moment to speak and he always made the comment to the kids "what did you do for your Mom today to help her?" and told my husband a few times do not wait to have Mother's Day. He celebrated Mother's Day quite often in his household. What a kind man, he must have been a fantastic husband and father.

Much sympathies to his whole family. He will be missed more than words can express.

Measles warning from health unit

In the wake of nearly a dozen measles cases being reported elsewhere in Ontario, local health officials want people here to take precautions against a very contagious disease.

The Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit is urging local residents to check that their vaccinations against measles are up-to-date. People born in 1970 or later are advised to ensure they have been vaccinated against measles.

Individuals born prior to 1970 were likely exposed to measles and are usually considered immune. However, people travelling outside North America, health care workers and military groups may require measles vaccination regardless of age.

The health unit's warning comes as a total of 11 measles cases have been detected recently in southern Ontario. So far in 2014, no confirmed measles cases have been reported to the Health Unit in Haliburton County, Northumberland County and the City of Kawartha Lakes.

Measles is a serious, highly infectious disease. People can spread measles to others before they develop symptoms of the disease. Measles can cause high fever, cough, rash, runny nose and watery eyes.

It can also lead to ear infections and pneumonia, and in rarer cases, encephalitis (an infection of the brain) and even death.

Very young children and people with weakened immune systems are most vulnerable to measles

"The good news is that while measles is contagious, the best protection against measles is vaccination with two doses of measles-containing vaccine," McCarey says.

In Ontario, the measles, mumps and rubella vaccine is publicly funded and typically given to children in two doses. The first dose is given soon after a child's first birthday, while the second is given at 18 months of age (or at four to six years of age in some cases).

Vaccination against measles, mumps and rubella is required by law for all children attending school in Ontario, unless there is a valid exemption on file with the Health Unit.

If people are uncertain about their vaccination status, McCarey advises they check their records.

If still unsure about the vaccines they have received, people should contact their health care provider or the Health Unit at 1-866-888-4577.

THE OTHER DAY I found a free hour or so and decided to shovel the back deck once

For those looking for the signs, this is another sure-fire indicator that hell is about to freeze over. And, of course, that there is a snow-covered deck there with my name on it.

Those familiar with the process know that there is really nothing too interesting about shovelling a back deck. But it did provide me with an interesting experiment to determine the relative IQ of all the sentient beings in and around my household.

Let's begin with the single digit numbers.

Millie and Callie, our lab and springer spaniel duo, were jumping at the door, barking with excitement. Clearly, they wanted to help. Oh, they wanted to help very badly.

That confirms my belief that neither is exactly the animal world equivalent of Stephen Hawking in terms of IQ. They might not even be the animal world's equivalent of Stephen Hawking's shoes, for that mat-

Then there is Maggie, our female cat.

Initially, she was nowhere to be seen. That boded well for her. But when I peered in the window, I discovered that she was at another window, constantly charging into the glass, any time a chickadee or nuthatch flitted by the nearby trees. Maggie how can I put this? - is not too bright either.

Even so, she could probably beat the dogs at Scrabble.

That left Mumbles, my loyal and faithful marmalade tomcat.

He just sat there comfortably on the mat behind the sliding glass door and watched, with some interest, as I

He seemed to be taking mental notes and appeared somewhat agitated that anyone would go to this much physical effort to move materials that are eventually going to melt.

Perhaps, he thought I was shovelling out a snowman's litter box. Or maybe, he was fascinated, as all cats are, by my mastery of simple tools - especially after I began to use the shovel right side up.

You would have thought he would have soon got bored by this hour-long event, but instead he seemed to actually become more engrossed as my back pain increased.

At one point, after I slipped on an icy patch, Mumbles turned away, presumably to chuckle. And since, like all humour columnists, I tell myself that a sense of humour is a sign of intelligence, I was starting to believe that my cat was fairly smart.

Eventually, however, I realized that I had deluded myself by thinking they had human type thoughts patterns at all. I think this occurred to me after I watched Maggie attack a dust ball.

I then realized that if I added up their total IQs, it would still be only slightly more intelligent than that of our vacuum cleaner. And it's a knockoff brand.

Regardless, that mental exercise helped pass the time while I shoveled about a ton or so of very wet snow off our back deck.

Later, that evening, while I lie in bed with stiff neck, aching shoulders, back spasm and sore knees and elbows, I thought about that morning, impending deadlines and how to pay the bills, while I waited for merciful sleep to take hold of me.

Meanwhile, each animal was deep in slumber without a worry in the world and all their needs taken care

What idiots, I thought.

The truth about Gelert

HEN YOU CROSS the line into Haliburton County, the first thing the border guard must explain to you is that Gelert rhymes with alert.

After that, all anybody needs to do to find out whether you are a come-from-away is ask how to get from Kinmount to Haliburton vil-

Unless you answer County Road One, you'll give yourself away. There may be somebody who has lived there all her life who rhymes Gelert with alert, but I haven't met

If you're really lucky, and the border guard has time on his hands, he might even tell re-tell the legend of

Not the story about how the Orange Lodge demanded that Little Ireland be re-named Gelert so that no visitor could imagine he had arrived in a devil's nest of Roman Catholics.

Not that story, but the legend of the Welsh hunting dog Gelert, whose unjust and tragic death the hamlet's name honours. This is the version I've always liked best.

Early in the 13th century, the story goes, the English King John made a gift of the wolfhound Gelert to Llewelyn the Great, Prince of Gwynedd in northwestern Wales.

One day Llewelyn went hunting. He left his baby boy, the crown prince, cradled in a cave and the dog Gelert to guard the entrance and protect him.

When he came home from the hunt, there stood the wolfhound, drenched in blood and gore. Inside the cave, the cradle was over-turned. The child was nowhere to be found.

Drawing a logical conclusion, the Prince of Gwynedd drew his broadsword and slew the dog with a single stroke. Expiring, the dog yelped one last dying yelp.

There was a long silence and then, from the depths of the cave, his baby boy velped back. Deep in the cave's shadows he lay, safe and sound. There beside him was the great wolf Gelert had killed to save his life.

This was a time even more brutal than our own, but you can imagine Llewelyn's despair. Such an act of betrayal is something most of us could never get over.

The Prince buried the faithful dog with great ceremony. It is said he never smiled again.

Some versions of the tale had the wolf and the baby in the nursery of Llewelyn's castle. Wherever they were, the story always seemed a little odd.

Would the Prince have left this important baby, his heir, without a human being to tend him, even in those more primitive times?

Of course it doesn't make sense, because it never happened. Almost certainly, it was a marketing ploy by an innkeeper who invented a tourist attraction for the village of Beddgelert.

Beddgelert means Gelert's Grave, but the Gelert buried there actually was an early Welsh saint named Kilart or Celert, not a dog.

No matter. The tourists keep coming anyhow to pay homage at the monument erected by David Pritchard, landlord of the Royal Goat Hotel, late in the 18th century.

The inscription on the gravestone, in cooperation with the parish clerk, told the tale. Poems were written. Nobody asked questions. Why let facts get in the way of a good story?

No matter that the Gelert fraud was exposed a hundred years ago. By then our Little Ireland was already Gelert, a rising village with two general stores, a post office, a railway station complete with cattle pens, a sawmill, a carpet mill, a shoemaker, a wagon-maker...

Too late to change that name. Not much remains of Gelert's early promise, but the name, and the legend that goes with it, lingers on.

False legends seem to be a Haliburton staple. It is common knowledge that Pine Lake became Gooderham after a whiskey salesman bought several rounds for the house at each of the village's three Wrong again, writes Elva Bates in A Journey Through Glamorgan's Past. The name change was a way of thanking a Gooderham family member for the generous contribution he made to the building fund for a new Methodist church.

Huh? Methodists taking liquor money? The Bates account is history, though there is a ring of truthiness to the whiskey salesman ver-

(NOTE - I believed the Gelert legend for years. It wasn't until cottager Joan Speed gave me a book by Englishman Daniel Farson, In Praise of Dogs, that I learned it wasn't true and confirmed that it was false with other sources.)

Airport committee conveys concerns with MNR base

Zach Cox

Staff reporter

The following are brief reports of items discussed during a April 3 meeting of the Algonquin Highlands coun-

During the airport committee update, Deputy-reeve Liz Danielsen indicated that several concerns had been raised at the Stanhope Airport committee meeting held on Monday, March 31. "There were some concerns about delay between hangars coming down and hangars going up," Danielsen said, explaining that several tenants are "scrambling looking for places to put their planes in covered areas."

Another expressed concern was the fact that tenants had heard they would not be allowed to park their cars in the hangars. "They shouldn't be parking in their hangars now, but they do. That's what the new parking lot is for, there's 25 spaces there for hangar tenants," said Angie Bird, chief administrative officer. Danielsen explained that the thought process behind the concern was that if the tenants were leasing the space, it was their hangar and they felt they should be allowed to park there.

One of the difficulties is, this county, for years, has had this friendly-folksy little recreational airport.

— Carol Moffatt Reeve Algonquin Highlands

"One of the difficulties is, this county, for years, has had this friendly-folksy little recreational airport. So we are embarking on a project that will step that up a little bit and we have agreed that in order to step that up, we have to change some of the rules," said Reeve Carol Moffat. Councillor Gord Henderson chimed in, expressing that a mix of vehicle traffic and aircraft was not desirable, nor recommended. Moffatt added that she expects some resistance to the changes and that there will be an adjustment period, but that "it has been discussed in our best interest for everyone's safety and proper airport management that the groundside and the airside crossover be as restricted as possible."

Council also noted the necessity for the community to approach the councillors and the municipality with concerns. "If the concerns from the public, on any issue, aren't given directly to the members of the council or the township itself, they don't exist," said Moffatt, expressing the difficulty of dealing with issues that the council hasn't heard. "We can't do anything with them if we don't know."

Hangar colour decided

Opting for a simple and classic look, the council members decided on stone grey siding with tile red trim for the new hangars at the Stanhope Airport. Councillor Marlene Kyle was in agreement with the colour selection but cautioned the group, recommending that they view a sample of the stone grey siding before placing their order. Kyle explained that she had ordered stone grey siding for her house, and when delivered, the siding was "as blue as can be." Provided that a sample is viewed and deemed acceptable, council will proceed with ordering stone grey siding.

Civil and electrical work on hangar awarded to Fowler

Council voted to award the tender for civil and electrical works at the Stanhope Airport to the Fowler Construction Company Limited. Out of the six bids received by 2 p.m. on March 26, Fowler's bid was the lowest, coming in at $3,563,561.72, including HST. The contract had to carry a line item accounting for the total cost of the hangar contract, therefore the $1.6 million for the hangars is included in the sum. The civil and electrical works themselves will cost approximately $1,491,000 plus HST. The six submitted bids ranged from the awarded $3,563,561.72 to $4,420720.28.

Property not divided

Council took the recommendation of planning consultant Greg Corbett to not support the division of a Harburn Holdings Ltd. property on Stanhope Airport road into three lots. The reasoning was that plans for development around the airport are still to be determined, and council does not wish to create potential future issues, should residential development begin in the

Relay for Life to be celebrated in Minden

Annual event will take place in Minden for the first time and will feature a candlelight walk

Angelica Blenich

Staff reporter

This year those looking to participate in the Haliburton County Relay for Life can trade in their sleeping bags and prepare to walk with candle in hand.

The annual fundraiser for the Canadian Cancer Society is adapting a new format for the first time in the county.

Typically held at the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School over the course of a night, this year the pilot will be held in Minden, where a candlelight walk will take place through the downtown.

Taking place on June 13, the event will kick-off at the Minden United Church on Newcastle Street, where both participants and volunteers can gather, said Relay for Life fundraising coordinator Emily Vassiliadis.

"It's a pilot for the community," she said. "It's kind of neat that they don't have to stay overnight and they can still raise funds in the fight against cancer."

The event will begin at 7:30 p.m., at which point participants will gather at the church.

"I envision that people will register as either a team or individual and do their fundraising ahead of time," said Vassiliadis.

Following that an opening ceremony featuring recognition of survivors and a luminary lighting portion will take

Walkers of all ages will then begin a 2.4-kilometre walk down Bobcaygeon Road, however can opt to do as much or little of the walk as they can handle.

"Out we go into the community. I'm looking for a beautiful presence of these lights walking down the road. I'm hoping it's going to be as beautiful as I think it's going to be," said the fundraising coordinator. "It's a very intimate event and focused on the luminary aspect."

The whole event will wrap up around 10:30 p.m.

The candlelight walk concept is not only new to the county, but to the organization as a whole, said Vassiliadis.

The coordinator is hoping the accessibility of the new format will make it appealing to both young and older members of the community.

With Canadian Cancer Society services available in Haliburton County, Vassiliadis is excited about continuing to host the signature fundraising event in the area.

"We have such a strong presence up there, we drive patients to treatment, all of our services are available from that area, so we still are there so I'm really glad to be doing something to recognize that," said Vassiliadis.

Floyd Hall Insurance has already signed on to be a key sponsor, with information and registration forms available at both county locations.

Those interested in volunteering for the event, both during and leading up to it, are welcome to contact Vassiliadis.

Sponsorships are also welcome. The Relay for Life coordinator can be reached at 705-742-3823 or at evassiliadis@ ontario.cancer.ca. More information can be found at www. relayforlife.ca/haliburton.

Boosting culinary tourism in Haliburton Highlands

Ontario is helping develop culinary tourism in Haliburton Highlands, generating local economic benefits and increasing appreciation for local food.

The province is providing $14,000 through the Local Food Fund to the County of Haliburton to help develop a detailed culinary tourism action plan and strategy. In collaboration with the Ontario Culinary Tourism Alliance (OCTA) and other key partners, the County of Haliburton will conduct research and hold stakeholder consultations. This project will also develop an inventory list and mapping assessment to capture regional food and culinary tourism attractions. The project is seeking to promote local food, creating ties within the community and developing a new tourism sector for visitors and residents of the Haliburton Highlands.

The Local Food Fund and new Local Food Act are part of the Ontario government's broader local food strategy to promote the good things that are grown, harvested and processed across the province.

Supporting the province's agri-food industry is part of the government's economic plan that is creating jobs for today and tomorrow. The comprehensive plan and its six priorities focus on Ontario's greatest strengths — its people and strategic partnerships.

"This project will help generate more tourism for the Haliburton Highlands by showcasing local food from the region. When we support the good things that are grown in Ontario, we create jobs, strengthen rural communities and grow," said Jeff Leal, Minister of Rural Affairs

The HHCC Board of Directors subsequently decided that a youth engagement strategy was to be a key priority for the Chamber, and the Chamber is now proud to introduce the Haliburton Highlands Young Professionals Network (YPN).

The YPN is committed to reaching out to young professionals; identifying their innovation, skills, experiences and interests; and working with the Chamber and community partners to make connections between young professionals, businesses, resources, and supports that will help promote our economic prosperity.

Volunteers are what make many organizations across the county and in Minden Hills function. They are the heart of many groups and institutions, which couldn't get their work done without the hundreds who dedicate their time for free.

The Times asked a few Minden Hills and Algonquin Highlands area groups and political leaders how volunteers have helped their communities. Here are some of the responses.

Make It Minden

A fun-filled evening once a week through the summer, Make It Minden allows different community organizations to come together and meet with the community.

Organizer Lynda Litwin said the number of volunteers varies by the group putting on the event. Examples of events include the Haliburton Highlands Time Travellers car club, the Minden Hills fire department and county paramedics, girl guides, and farm association. Litwin also organizes events with very few volunteers such as Float Your Hull Down the Gull, where people jump in the river at Rotary Park and float down to the bridge on Bobcaygeon Street.

"The Highlands is blessed with people that want to get involved. There are so many talented people that are willing to sharing their time and efforts to make this community the wonderful place we all call home. There are multiple organizations that welcome new people all the time and the right fit is available for everyone," said Litwin.

More than 100 people assist with a variety of recreational, cultural and other community events and projects, said Minden Hills Reeve Barb Reid.

'The municipality would have to scale back on many activities if we didn't have the support of our volunteers; it just wouldn't be the same without them," she said.

Examples of some of the groups volunteers help with include the Minden Hills Cultural Centre (particularly the Festival of Trees); municipal advisory committees (80 volunteers sit on various committees); community events (Canada Day, Halloween, Santa Claus Parade, Family Day weekend); and planting flowers around town with the Minden and District Horticultural Society.

The township thanks its volunteers throughout the year, but also with a special evening celebration. At that event, three awards are given out to members of the community who have made a special contribution in the last year.

'Volunteering is a great way to meet people who share common interests. It's also a good way for newcomers to meet people in the community. Haliburton Highlands is a very special place because we have such a high degree of volunteerism. Thank you to all our volunteers," said Reid.

According to member Mickey Bonham, the group has 66 members and is always looking for more.

Some assist with fundraisers, others work in the gift shop, while a contingent visits with residents at Hyland Crest long-term care unit.

"Without volunteers the MHCA would not exist," said Bonham.

The auxiliary regularly receives thanks and is also given additional praise at an annual volunteer recognition dinner.

"The MHCA is a good example of the many organizations in the Highlands through which people provide valuable services for our community. And if you are new to Minden, it's a great way to meet people. We have a lot of fun. Drop in

Algonquin Highlands

About 45 people help to make the Township of Algonquin Highlands's community, heritage and recreation programs function.

Both Stanhope and Dorset museums benefit from dedicated people giving their time, as does the Dorset Recreation Centre, Oxtongue Lake Community Centre, airport committee and more.

"This number doesn't include the spouses of committee members who help out when asked. We call that 'the domestic draft," said Algonquin Highlands Reeve

She estimates when the domestic arait is added the number of volunteers is closer to 75.

If you imagine the municipality without volunteers, you'd have to cut out Stanhope Heritage Day, the Dorset

Snowball, Young Eagles, tree lighting, Words, Wine and Music and the Halloween party in Dorset - the list goes on. Plus there's the Stanhope soccer league with more parents, coaches and refs on top of it all.

The world of volunteers is a tightly woven community, Moffatt said, meaning township volunteers usually overlap with other service organiza-

There are also 50 volunteer firefighters who work out of three fire halls -Dorset, Stanhope and Oxtongue Lake. "Every fall AH hosts a volunteer luncheon that rotates between the Dorset and Stanhope recreation centres. We cater a lunch and council serves the wine! The reeve makes a brief thank you address. There's usually anywhere between 30 and 50 in attendance," she There's also a special Christmas event for volunteers.

"Without volunteers, AH would be a pretty quiet place. They have great ideas, endless energy and a commitment to keeping a sense of community alive and well. Our firefighters are second to none. We couldn't afford to replace any of these people with paid staff. They are invaluable.

Canadian Cancer Society

In Minden's district, which includes Peterborough, Haliburton County, Northumberland and City of Kawartha Lakes, there are 1,200 volunteers with the Canadian Cancer Society.

The roles range from those who offer driving and peer support to those undergoing cancer treatment to those who do fundraising campaigns and events, said Alison Payne from the Peterborough district society.

"For communities such as those in the Highlands, we depend on volunteers to ensure our message reaches the residents and that fundraising occurs in all areas. Without volunteers we would not be in a position to successfully work towards our mission of eradicating cancer and enhancing the lives of those living with cancer," she said.

While there are volunteer recognition events, "we also are very aware of the value of a personal thank you," she

"Without our dedicated volunteers in the Highlands there would be cancer patients that do not get to treatment, have no one to reach out to for support and are not aware of other services offered in their area. Our drivers, peers support volunteers and community champions demonstrate a commitment to our organization as well as cancer patients that truly makes a difference. We have fundraising volunteers that provide residents an opportunity to join the fight so that life- saving research is funded and programs and services continue. Everyone at the Canadian Cancer Society would like to take this opportunity to say a heartfelt thank you to each and every one of our volunteers in the Highlands."

Haliburton Highlands Nordic Trail Association

"Ontario's Best Cross Country Ski Network"

The Haliburton Nordic Trail Association has developed and maintains over 70 km of well groomed cross country ski trails throughout Haliburton County. We are a not-for-profit association run 100% by volunteers. Without these volunteers and the countless hours they commit we would have no trails at all and would have to drive elsewhere to ski.

Hundreds of hours are spent each summer repairing and improving trails, replacing culverts and wash outs, filling in with gravel and clearing brush.

Each winter a number of volunteers are out there grooming the trails no matter what the weather conditions so that skiers have the best groomed trails possible. We are noted for having some of the best trails in the province not only because of the grooming levels but for the variety as well. Volunteers created these excellent trails that attract people from other communities because of their excellence.

These volunteers make all of this happen with their only reward being, knowing they have done a superb job for both the community and cross country skiing in general. And for this we are eternally grateful.

Nix Minus One by Jill MacLean

"The first time I came across the word introversion was the first time I recognized myself. Like, there was a category for me. I spend thirty hours a week in school where extroversion is the only version."

Nix Minus One by Jill MacLean is the story about a softspoken young man struggling with the turmoil of growing up, and finding the strength to fight for those he loves.

Even though Nixon Humbolt is far leaner and taller than his "Fatty Humbolt" days of elementary school, he is still afraid of the high school seniors and tormented by bully Kendal Green. When not trying to rescue Swiff Dunphy's defeated guard dog, or seeking refuge in his father's workshop, he's covering for his rebellious and attention hogging older sister Roxy (who's dating high school senior and bad boy Bryan Sykes), and pining for his unrequited love Loren Cody (his best friend's girlfriend) while working out his feelings for the quirky Blue McCallum (his best friend's sister). All this, while trying not to fail

Birds signal the return of spring

Patti Fleury

Around the Town

Here at the old farmhouse this morning a pair of robins skip across the dooryard. While patches of grass are still circled by soiled snow the robins arrival plus somewhat higher day temperatures bring a sense that Spring is not far behind. Generally speaking though the number of birds sharing our space has declined over the past few years and is a concern. In 1999 before the addition there were 27 barn swallow nests built into every nook and cranny of the original house. One year moving the canoes to Crystal Lake for camp opening was left to the last minute waiting for the swallow babies to become airborne finally leaving their nests tucked under the gunwales. Summer skies were often akin to Cirque de Soleil acrobatics as the long suffering parents encouraged their offspring to experience the freedom of flight. On the wire there always seemed to be one little guy who lagged behind the rest. I could empathise with him having refused to fly until my late thirties with many opportunities missed. This summer garden offerings will sport more plants and flowers for birds and butterflies and I pledge to keep the birdbath always filled on those hot summer days.

Legion br. 636

Minden Legion was taken by surprise with the response to the latest edition of our newsletter, the Blue Beret. All copies were gone within three days, but we promise more will be printed this week. If you would like to receive an email version, please contact Public Relations Officer at jbmcg@sympatico.

Two minutes of silence was held at last Week's General Membership Meeting of Minden Legion in memory of those who had recently passed away, including member Jackie Chillman. Our condolences to her family and friends.

New member Stacey Smitton was initiated by Past President Georgina Parkes. This is the last step to becoming a full member of the Royal Canadian Legion. If you see Stacey's smiling face behind the bar on Thursdays, please be sure to give her a warm welcome.

Diane Wigley was appointed as Branch Treasurer and David Mount as acting Sgt-At-Arms due to the leave of absence of Noel Swift. Thank you both for accepting these tasks.

In other business, the Branch Regulation regarding frequency of monthly General Meetings was amended to exclude December, January and February only. Quorum was changed to 5% of the voting membership, and nominations can now be accepted at the April Meeting. Consequently a number of names were put forward for election. For President: Judy Flieger and Georgina Parkes; 1st Vice Jan Briggs-McGowan; Secretary Wendy Bolt; Treasurer Diane Wigley; Executive (6 to be elected) Rick Wilson, Pete McGowan, Sonny Lauchlan; Al Mayo; May Bradbury; Lee Train and Roy Flieger. More nominations can be submitted for elections to be held at the Annual meeting in May.

Members also approved two expenditures from the Poppy Fund, one to the Army Cadet Corps this September, and the other a post-secondary bursary for a great-grandchild of a vet-

The Minden Legion will be closed Saturday, Sunday and Monday of Easter Weekend, Apr 19, 20 and 21st.
